Online articles, if used effectively, can become a major source of traffic for your website, and therefore boost your Alexa ranking. Many directories will let you post articles for free; take advantage of this by writing articles relevant to your site niche and then linking to your site at the end of the article. Submit each article to as many directories as possible, and make a habit of it! The key is consistency; if you write three quality articles per day then within a year you will have over a thousand articles linking to your site! address. This is no coincidence! The reason why these blogs are successful is that they realise the importance of 'capturing leads'. What does this mean? Put simply, it means getting as many visitors' email addresses as possible. E-mail is by far the most powerful sales medium available on the internet; it allows the blog owner to directly contact individuals who have expressed an interest in their site! So how do we get as many e-mail addresses as possible from our visitors?

The most important thing is to start capturing leads as soon as possible; as soon as you start your blog, provide the visitor with an opportunity to sign up. Otherwise, you are missing out on valuable customers!
